Circuit Information

RED BULL RING

The Red Bull Ring is 4,318 meters long and has ten corners.

The drivers drive only a short lap, but it is certainly not boring. In the first half of the track, the cars race along three straights, separated by a few uphill right turns. But then when the drivers go downhill, they have to race through a series of fast turns, including the Rindt turn, named after Austria's first F1 champion.

Beyond the racing excitement, the Red Bull Ring offers an immersive experience for fans. Its fan-friendly environment allows spectators to get up close to the action, offering multiple vantage points that promise spectacular views of the high-speed drama unfolding. The circuit's history, once known as the Österreichring, adds to its allure, blending a rich motorsport heritage with a modern racing spectacle, making the Red Bull Ring a revered and picturesque gem in the Formula 1 calendar.

LAST YEAR'S RACE

Max Verstappen secured his fifth consecutive victory in Austria with an outstanding performance, including an extra point for the fastest lap, further extending his lead over other drivers.

The Red Bull driver was once again dominant, leading Ferrari's Charles Leclerc and teammate Sergio Perez. The latter also had an impressive race, moving from P15 to the third spot on the podium.

McLaren's Lando Norris had much to celebrate at the Red Bull Ring, earning the Driver of the Day award for a stellar performance and clinching P4 after many drivers received additional time penalties post-race.

The entire race was marked by track limits, with numerous drivers initially penalized during the race. This led to the cancellation of a staggering 83 laps because drivers had exceeded track limits. Subsequently, twelve penalties were imposed on Carlos Sainz, Lewis Hamilton, Pierre Gasly, Alex Albon, Esteban Ocon, Logan Sargeant, Nyck de Vries, and Yuki Tsunoda.

Alternatively, public transportation is another option – travel to Knittelfeld station. From there there are direct (free) shuttle buses to the circuit. Throughout the weekend a shuttle bus goes there every half hour from 08:00 to 20:00. From 20:00 to 23:00 it will be every hour instead of half hour. On Sunday, the shuttle buses only run until 19:00.

Opening Hours

The circuit opens its door at 07:00 in the morning the whole weekend.

Food and Drinks

The best selection of food and drink in Spielberg can be found in the Fan Zone. Normally you will find a selection of tasty Austrian food here; schnitzels, burgers and bratwurst are generally reasonably priced at about €6 and cheaper options are available.

In previous seasons, large beers (half-liter) were available for about €4.50. In addition, soft drinks and the like could be purchased for about €3. A cashless system in the form of a wristband is used at the track with which you pay. This can be upgraded with cash or a credit card.

You can also choose to bring food and drinks to the circuit. Please note that this may not be in glass containers or bottles. Also, you are not allowed to take your own alcohol onto the track.

Sanitary Facilities

In general, there are plenty of restrooms on the track. Pay attention to the signs directing you to the nearest restroom.
