ABOUT THE RED BULL RING

ABOUT THE CIRCUIT

Situated in Spielberg, Austria, the Red Bull Ring is a 4,318-meter circuit featuring 10 turns. The undulating terrain results in height variances of up to 69 meters, adding a significant level of technical challenge to the track.

The track features three DRS zones: one after the start/finish straight, another between turns 3 and 4, and a third after turn 10. With lap times just over a minute, there is no time for rest. The racing is continuous, ensuring spectators are captivated from beginning to end.

The track is made for speed, featuring long straights where drivers can push the boundaries of their cars, guaranteeing thrilling overtaking maneuvers and constant excitement for spectators.

HOW CAN I REACH THE CIRCUIT?

The most convenient way to reach the Red Bull Ring is by car. Parking is free and the parking lots are located within a 10–15 minute walk of the circuit. Parking lots open one hour before the circuit's opening times each day.

Public transportation is also an option. Take the train to Knittelfeld station. From there, free shuttle buses run directly to the circuit. Shuttle buses depart every 30 minutes from 8:00 AM to 8:00 PM throughout the weekend. From 8:00 PM to 11:00 PM, shuttle buses depart hourly. On Sundays, shuttle buses run until 7:00 PM only.
